

Construction back in full swing

The new year brings many new project milestones to look forward to, and construction activities are already in full swing on campus.

The first half of 2022 will see demolition works make way for the start of construction on new hospital buildings along Goulburn Street, marked by the arrival of a 69 metre crane in coming months that will call Liverpool Hospital home for the next year.

Some of our project team recently visited the main works construction site to see how demolition works are progressing, catching the 47 tonne pulveriser in action as it chomped away at existing structures to separate the hospital buildings safely.

Meanwhile, our new multi-storey car park is steaming ahead and will soon reach full height. With more than 1000 spaces, the new facility will be a welcome addition to campus when it becomes operational mid-year, replacing the existing P2 multi-level car park.

We're looking forward to sharing updates on progress of the Liverpool Health and Academic Precinct with you throughout the year.

Planning paves the way for future Emergency Department

The extensive redevelopment of Liverpool Hospital will include a significant expansion of our Emergency Department (ED), transforming it into one of the largest EDs in the country.

Consultation with frontline workers, clinicians and medical staff has been a key component of the project. Their insights, ideas and feedback was critical to ensuring the future ED was designed to enhance patient care and support new workflows.

ED Nurse Manager, Melissa Wakefield, said the planning and design processes were very collaborative and have helped to create an ED that will benefit both staff and patients.

“Our ED teams are really excited to soon be able to see staff input translated into physical spaces and new ways of working.

“The co-location of key services will significantly enhance care provision, and we're aiming for a one-way physical journey for patients from when they enter ED to being assessed and either discharged or admitted to the hospital,” Melissa said.

The careful planning of the future ED will be welcomed by both community and staff.

New eateries to try

Staff and patients have been excitedly watching on as new dining options were being constructed within the hospital.

Three new eateries now offer an array of food and beverages that are sure to make your mouth water...

Tsubu Sushi and Plume are adjoining eateries located within the Anzac Courtyard. A culinary first for the hospital, Tsubu Sushi offers a sushi bar experience with a range of classic and creative options and a tasty hot food range. Adjacent Plume serves up a delicious bakery range and hot coffees to kick start your day.

Located along the main concourse and opposite the pharmacy, facility-favourite Taste Baguette will soon open a pop-up cafe where they'll continue to serve up their popular baguettes and beverages.

REMINDER: Hospital access changes

Construction activity along Goulburn and Elizabeth Streets has changed the way patients and visitors access the hospital.

– For 24-hour access, please use Entrance J via Burnside Drive.

– For daily access, please enter via Entrance L off Campbell Street (6am to 8pm) or Entrance N off Campbell Street (6.30am to 5.30pm).

Note: Access to the Emergency Department from Elizabeth Street has not changed.

New car park fun facts

As our new seven-storey car park nears full height, we thought we'd share some interesting facts about the structure and its construction...

- Project builder ADCO Constructions reuses water on site to minimise waste.
- The project will include a rooftop solar system to help power the car park and reduce electricity usage.
- The structure is naturally ventilated, with a 50 per cent open deck helping to reduce energy consumption.
- The car park will include equipment to enable future provision of electric vehicle charging stations.

Spotlight on Sean...

Name: Sean

Role: ADCO Constructions (new car park)

Sean has more than three years of project management experience and has completed a Bachelor of Construction Management.

His days as part of the team delivering the Liverpool Health and Academic Precinct vary – from daily construction site walks to procurement management, reviewing the project budget and coordinating trades on site – Sean helps ensure there is clear communication and frequent progress updates between the construction team and the hospital, and that day-to-day activities are progressing as planned.

Sean's advice to anyone looking at a career in construction is to give it a go as there's lots of options in the field, not just building.

Toolman Ted recently joined Sean (pictured) for a trip to the top of the multi-storey car park structure to check out the completed slab pours.
