

Adding a splash of colour and connecting to culture

As the new multi-storey car park nears construction completion, it's set to undergo a colourful transformation!

Almost 1800 'petals' are carefully being added to the façade of the structure by specialised high-access experts, taking more than five weeks to complete.

Each piece is individually wrapped and delivered to site where a grounds coordinator advises how each petal should be applied, including the orientation, colour placement and angle, making it a highly unique installation.

The car park facade consists of more than 6000 square metres of stainless steel mesh that wraps the structure to support the artwork and provide a safety barrier.

Upon completion, the petals will form a striking design that represents and celebrates the rich cultural history of the Liverpool region.

Abundance of opportunities for skilling and employment

The Buraga Gul Skilling and Employment Hub, translating to 'rise above' in the Darug language, is a training centre that delivers certified skilling programs and employment pathways for young people, apprentices, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people and women interested in entering the workforce.

The hub, located at 43 Forbes Street, Liverpool, is an initiative of principal project builders Lendlease, and provides a range of practical skilling opportunities and construction pathway programs – from white cards and first aid certificates, to barista skills courses.

Lendlease's Aboriginal Workforce and Industry Participation Manager, Celeste Dargan, said the hub offers an open door policy to welcome and support anyone seeking skilling and employment opportunities, with all programs linked to local employment outcomes.

"We aim to increase employment prospects for local residents by helping them meet the specific skills needed to enter the workforce."

The hub is a collaboration between Lendlease, TAFE NSW, Liverpool City Council, Aboriginal Employment Strategy, Health Infrastructure and key stakeholders of the Liverpool Health and Academic Precinct project, including Liverpool Hospital.

For more information, email liverpool@lendlease.com to join the hub's mailing list.

Nearing the finish line

Hospital staff have been getting familiarised with the new multi-storey car park before it opens to the public in coming months.

With final touches being placed on areas inside the car park, works are also underway to prepare the areas outside of the structure, including a new, light-filled walkway connecting the car park to the hospital, a landscaped outdoor recreation space, enhanced access route lighting and the striking artwork design on the façade.

Once operational, there will be changes to how you access hospital parking.

The P2 multi-storey car park and P3 underground car park will be accessible via Burnside Drive only.

Pedestrians will have 24 hour hospital access via Entrance J from both car parks.

Stay tuned for updates as we get closer to the opening of the new car park...

A team of staff recently visited the top level of the car park to catch some Liverpool skyline views!

Last month we farewelled Celsus, our first crane on site to help build the new multi-storey car park, which is now nearing completion.

Crane name announcement coming soon...

With our Name the Crane competition now closed, we'd like to thank all the local students who shared their creative ideas, making it a difficult decision for our judges!

Stay tuned for the announcement of the winning student and school on our socials:

We're keeping wraps on the winning name, which will be announced following the installation of the new 52-metre tower crane in July. The lucky winner will join the project team for an official naming ceremony and get to see their winning name flying high as they collect a $500 gift card for their school!
