

New year, new milestones!

It's 2023 and construction is steaming ahead at the Liverpool Health and Academic Precinct, as the new hospital building continues to grow and take shape.

In the coming months, the five-storey building will reach full height and tower over the construction hoarding along Elizabeth and Goulburn Streets.

Demolition works are now complete on the former P2 car park which will become a ground level public parking area and an additional entrance point into the new P2 car park.

This year will also bring many upgrades and renovations to various departments for staff and patients, signalling that the redevelopment is making excellent progress.

Departments to be renovated, include:

- Interventional Radiology
- Operating Theatres
- Intensive Care Unit administration hub
- Surgical Short Stay Unit

There's a lot coming up for the redevelopment team, so make sure you follow the progress at:

Façade design revealed

A snippet of the façade design for the future hospital building off Goulburn Street has been revealed (see images above).

The modern and sleek design is a special feature of the new building and the public forecourt area, which will also become the new main entrance for the hospital.

The main entrance will also be complemented by green landscaping and a First Nations public artwork installation.

KIDS APPROVED! Some special little guests enjoyed their visit to our beautiful new public outdoor area, which is now open to staff, patients and visitors. The welcoming space is located next to the new multi-storey car park and includes more than 1000 new plants and trees, and plenty of seating.
