Construction on pause...

In line with the current public health advice, all redevelopment construction activity is currently on hold.

As a result, the scheduled early August commencement of the first stage of main works has been paused until restrictions are lifted.

During this time, our project team members are working from home to support project continuity and planning for works to commence once the construction pause is lifted – helping to minimise impact to the project timeline.

Some project team members have also been redeployed to other hospital departments such as the District's COVID-19 response team to assist with contact tracing.

LHAP Director of Redevelopment, Karinn Marrone said the team was glad to be assisting others.

"It's essential that while construction is on hold our staff are being proactive and can offer their skills and time to hospital services that will benefit from additional resources during this challenging time."

Car park ramps up!

Prior to the pause on construction works, Toolman Ted was excitedly watching the multi-storey car park grow and take shape. The spiral ramp from ground floor to level one is now complete, as are suspended slab pours up to level one.

Design plans signed = big smiles!

Our Interventional Radiology (IR) team had big smiles as they signed-off design plans for their future hospital working spaces.

The future department will include an IR suite with a room that combines CT, Angiography and MRI scans, providing the latest in minimally invasive and effective treatments, enabling earlier oncology diagnoses and helping to reduce morbidity and length of stay in hospital.

This leading edge technology will be the first of its kind in the country and will help further personalise treatments to suit a wider range of patients.

Scrubs the Pug joined Head of Department Glen Schlaphoff and Chief Radiographer Kirsten Temple to sign plans.

Sustainability focus

FUN FACT: More than 92 per cent of construction waste from the new multi-storey car park site is being diverted from landfill and recycled into other construction materials!

Project builder ADCO Constructions has committed to sustainability through a range of initiatives, including ensuring they reuse water on site to minimise waste.

The team also participates in a charity event focused on environmental sustainability each year.

Sneak peek – what's to come in the first stage of main works

The Liverpool Health and Academic Precinct is a major redevelopment of Liverpool Hospital and will include the construction of new buildings on site, undertaken over two stages of main works. The first stage is due for completion in late 2023.

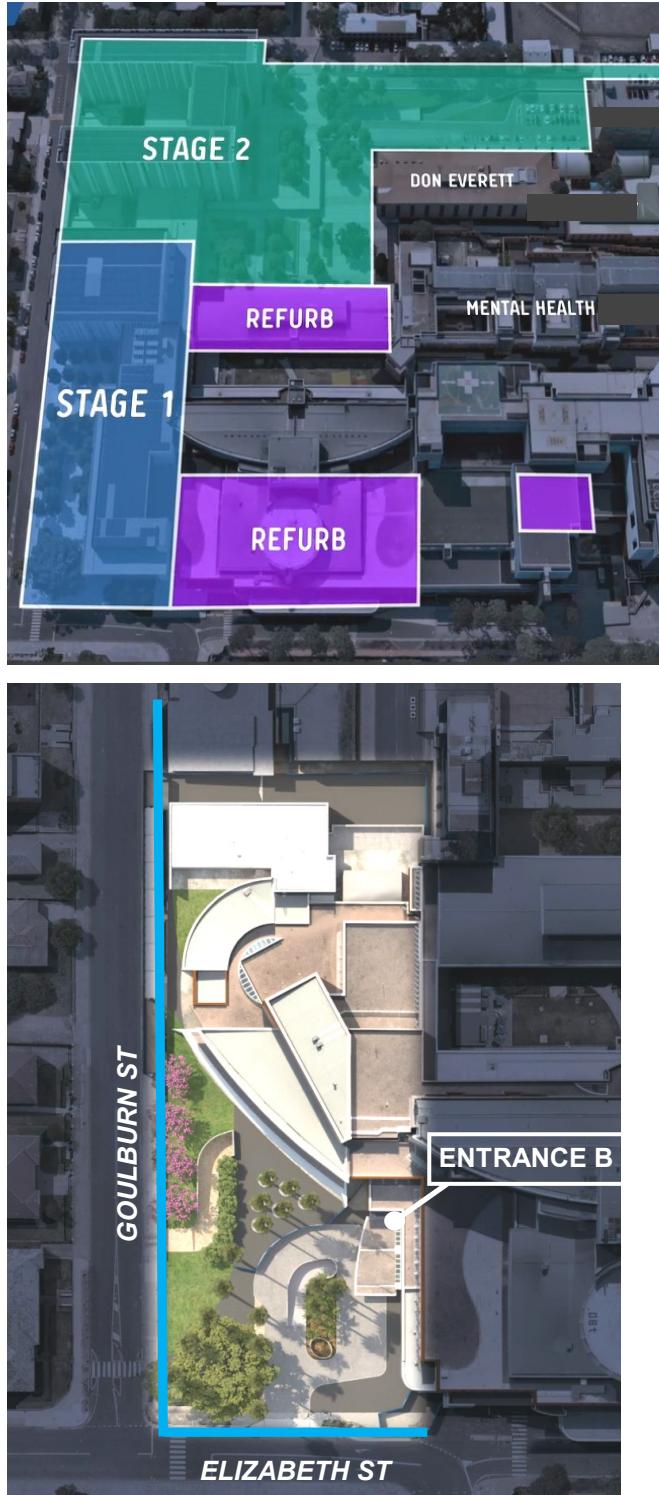

To enable demolition of existing buildings, site establishment will commence once the current construction pause is lifted. Works will see a range of access changes for vehicles and pedestrians travelling to the hospital.

Site establishment impacts from September*:

- Entrance B stair closure: Currently providing access to Level 1 (including the General Manager's Unit), these stairs will permanently close to enable installation of construction hoarding .
- P1 car park: The P1 (Elizabeth Street) car park entry and exit ramps will permanently close. Visitors will need to access alternate parking in P2 car park off Campbell Street or P3 car park off Burnside Drive.
- Entrance B lifts: The main entry lifts (Lift A) located at Entrance B will permanently close. Visitors will use Lifts B and C, located along the main concourse, to access all levels. Staff can use Lift X located in the staff only corridor.
- Elizabeth Street, front forecourt: Construction hoarding will be installed around the future construction zone, closing the turning circle and current main entry. An alternate pedestrian entry will be created off Elizabeth Street, adjacent to Emergency.

As construction gets underway, we'll keep you informed of impacts via our project communications. Be sure to keep an eye out for our future newsletters and visit the Precinct Updates page on our website for the latest impacts to hospital access.

* Please note that the timing of works may be subject to change.
