

Commitment to indigenous partnerships

Indigenous partnerships are an important element of all hospital redevelopments, including the Liverpool Health and Academic Precinct project.

The contractor for the first stage of the early works program, Roberts Pizzarotti, made a commitment to indigenous engagement when signing agreements with the Indigenous Defence and Infrastructure Consortium to achieve the sustainable inclusion of indigenous owned businesses in their supply chain, allocating a portion of the project spend to support of Aboriginal staff and businesses. Subcontractors employed by Roberts Pizzarotti have also made that commitment, engaging indigenous employees in the current stormwater works, sewer works and traffic control teams.

Multiplex, responsible for the second stage of early works, is also leveraging a longstanding relationship with Aboriginal Employment Strategy to implement Aboriginal participation and indigenous employment opportunities across the project works. Multiplex has initiated a partnership with Liverpool TAFE to deliver the training required to support employment of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people and develop innovative solutions for transitioning young disadvantaged people into the workforce.

In recognition of NAIDOC Week, which would usually be celebrated nationally in July, we acknowledge the valuable contribution Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander community members and businesses are making to our project.

Distribution Centre on the move

The Distribution Centre (DC) forms part of the General Services unit and plays an integral role within Liverpool Hospital, taking receipt of mail, hospital supplies and bulky goods for same day delivery to the wards and departments across the campus.

The team takes great pride in the distribution services they provide and are excited about the changes that will come about with the Liverpool Health and Academic Precinct redevelopment.

Members of the team are currently participating in Project User Group (PUG) meetings to help shape the way their new space will operate and will be temporarily moving in the coming months to make way for the new build and relocation of HealthShare Food into the existing DC space.

What's next?

Building a hospital is not as straight forward as you might think, and every hospital redevelopment is tailored to a community's unique needs.

Only after an extensive planning and design process can building commence, and as many redevelopments take place on existing hospital sites, it's essential that works are staged to not compromise the day-to-day operations of the staff and clinicians in providing patient care.

Our project has now progressed to design development, with enabling works taking place on site in parallel with continued planning for future construction works.

The delivery phase involves the award of construction tenders for various stages of works. Roberts Pizzarotti and Multiplex are the contractors for the early works stage of the Liverpool Health and Academic Precinct.

The contracts for the main works and multi-storey car park will be awarded as separate packages of works.
